

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

On a displaying unit, there are displayed facsimile numbers or names of destinations as contents of the first table stored in a storage device, from which a user selects a destination to which the user desires to transmit a facsimile by using dialing keys and operation keys. When the desired destination is selected, functions or items of additional information corresponding to the selected destination are displayed on the displaying unit. When the user selects a function which the user desires to use or an item of the additional information which the user desires to transmit, the controlling unit transmits the selected item of the additional information to the selected destination. A facsimile apparatus that can facilitate selection of items of additional information transmitted to a destination with improved convenience is provided.
